History

Founded in 1922, Taylor Electric Company has been "A Name You Can Trust" in Chicago for more than eight years. Founded by Sam Taylor, at a time when it wasn't necessary to sign a contract to do electrical work, Taylor Electric Company performed light industrial and residential work on the south and west sides of Chicago.

Sam Taylor's philosophy; that a man's word is his bond, and that only a company that performed quality work would survive, proved the test of time. Taylor Electric Company is the oldest African American owned and operated construction firm in Chicago and is now a multi-million dollar corporation performing work throughout Cook County. Sam Taylor's philosophy of quality and integrity is the foundation of our success, and is incorporated into every aspect of our business.

Management

A third generation family owned and operated business, Taylor Electric Company is currently run by two of the founder's grandchildren Martha Taylor and Kenneth Dinkins.

Martha Taylor, current President/Chief Executive Officer, attended Florida A&M University to study business and accounting. After college, she returned as Controller to assist with the financial and administrative duties of the growing company before becoming president/CEO in 1995.

Kenneth "Kenny" Dinkins, current Vice President/Chief Operations Officer, worked his way up the ranks starting in 1971 as an apprentice electrician. Currently responsible for all estimating and field operations, Kenny brings more than 40 years of experience to Taylor Electric.
